COLUMBIA, ADAIR COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY AUG. 16, 1911.

NUMBER 41

To The Ministerial Association.

In reply to yours in last week's issue of the News, in which you advise the Columbia Fair Association against a repetition of the conduct of some parties on our grounds, last year, we desire to make known to you, as well as all others who like peace and sobriety, and who enjoy the social features of our Fair, that the association has each year done its best to prevent disorder, and to arrest it when done as soon as possible. True, some few have created trouble on our grounds, to the discomfiture of others and shame to themselves, but in each instance arrests were made, and the offenders delivered to our county officers who imposed fines. As a rule we have but few who attempt to mar the peace, or disturb the orderly. Last year the Sheriff and his deputies were employed to keep order, and in justice to them, as well as the association, we feel safe in saying that they discharged their duties faithfully, honestly and bravely. As we remember only two arrests were made, and nothing to warrant others. The association has again employed the same gentlemen, and feel that it has secured the best protection against rowdism and disturbances within its power. We have, each year, done all within our power to make every meeting a pleasant one, and while some little disturbances have occurred, usually due to an over indulgence of liquor, you well know that in large bodies of people, regardless of the nature or purpose of the gathering, there may be some who have no respect for decency and order. We have never offered any inducement to bring this class or kind of people to our Fair, but on the contrary have employed detectives to run down bootleggers, and to suppress every tendency we could that pointed to the corruption of morals. We have placed our refreshment privileges in the hands of gentlemen, and under the same binding contract usually made and reads as follows:

"It is agreed that the parties of the second part shall not sell or attempt to sell any ciders of any kind or nature, beer, or any imitation of beer or any thing containing any alcohol whatever, regardless of the name or label under which they may attempt to sell same. In the event the parties of the second part shall violate this contract or any part of same, the said Fair association reserves the right to close the stand, and the parties of the second part agree to forfeit the amount stated above, and to pay same to the Fair association immediately upon demand."

We believe that the average conduct on our grounds is as good as any similar gathering of like number of people anywhere, and that the disorder is as little and trivial, and feel that no one need apprehend disturbance or trouble. That some may disturb is within the province of a possibility; that all offenders will be arrested and delivered to the county officers is in the limits of our intention, and a certainty. Our purpose is to accomplish good and give our people an entertainment in the exhibit of stock and farm products that will prove healthy to all participants, and at the same time furnish music to those who like to hear the stirring strains that come from a good band of musicians, and give all a chance to meet their many old friends.

Gentlemen, of the Ministerial association, you are invited to spend the four days on our grounds, and we trust that nothing will occur to mar your peace and pleasure. Ministers of the gospel and all people seventy years old can secure complimentary tickets by calling on our Secretary, J. B. Coffey. Ladies admitted free the first day.

Respectfully,
The Columbia Fair Association, Incorporated

Farm For Sale.

On Monday, the 4th day of September, 1911, at the Court House door, in Columbia, Ky., I will offer for sale to the highest and best bidder, the farm known as the Julia Ann Garnett farm consisting of 107 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres, more or less, and situated in Adair County, on the waters of Russell's Creek, and between the upper and lower roads from Columbia to Greensburg. These lands are the same conveyed to Julia A. Garnett by Jas. Garnett, &c, and J. P. Hancock, &c. The terms will be made known on the day of sale, and the right to reject all bids is reserved. This farm will be for sale privately until said 4th day of September.

Jas. W. Garnett,
Agent for the heirs of Julia Ann Garnett, deceased

The Adair County Teachers' Institute will be held at the court-house, in Columbia, the first week in September. It will be conducted by Prof. Jas. U. Snyder, of Marion, Prof. W. J. Craig, of Bowling Green, McHenry Rhoads, of Lexington, Rural School Inspector, will be present during the session. The public is cordially invited to attend.

With Misses Myers and Atkins.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Miss Myrtle Myers last Wednesday, when Misses Myers and Atkins entertained with a "Porch Party" in honor of their guests, Misses Cantrell, Leachman and Hodges, of Greensburg.

The house was prettily decorated as was also the porch which was lighted by an extended string of Japanese lanterns.

In the far corner of the porch delightful punch was served by the little Misses Ruth Page and Julia Blakeman.

In all it was a most enjoyable evening, and the midnight hour found all loath to leave the scene of merry making, the following young people were present:

Misses Madge Rosenfield, Alice Walker, Katie Murrell, Margaret Todd, Ida Todd, Mabel Jasper, Vic Hughes, Lillie Judd, Lura Smith, Mollie Flowers, Mallie Moss, Mary Cartwright, Bess Holladay, Ruth Summers, Mary Miller, Tabitha Richardson, Amanda Butler, Laura Cantrell, Brownie Leachman, Eva Hodges, Annie Hodges, Mabel Atkins, Myrtle Myers and Mrs. G. R. Reed.

Messrs. Robert Todd, George and Ray Montgomery, Adair Hodges, Fred Hill, John Flowers, Ralph Hurt, Herschel Baker, Edwin Hulse, Oscar McBeath, Herbert Smith, Jim Garnett, Alec Chewning, Horace Hamilton, Clyde Crenshaw, Tim Cravens, Tom and Romie Judd, James Wilmore, Dr. Flowers, Rob Reed.

A Useful Attachment.

Dr. C. A. Cox, who is here from Jonesboro, Tenn., representing a very useful print, one that should interest every person who drives horses. It is a safety that no farmer, liveryman or those who drive for pleasure can afford to do without. It is a patent holdback that remains upon the harness, adjustable to fit any horse. Mr. W. E. Mayfield, of Burkesville, is the agent for that section. Dr. Cox is at the Hancock Hotel and will take pleasure in showing this attachment, which, as above stated, no person can afford to do without.

Thirty years Together.

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and its the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequalled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Paul Drug Co."

Mr. Peter Pendleton, who was an old citizen of this county, died one day last week, at his late home, on Sulphur, aged 72 years. His remains were buried at Egypt.

Death of a Good Woman.

Last Wednesday night, about eight o'clock, the life work of Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, who was the beloved wife of Mr. S. H. Mitchell, came to a close at her late home in the suburbs of Columbia. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Flowers. Her parents died many years ago. She leaves two brothers, one half sister and one step-daughter, who are in the West, a step-mother, one half sister and a step-daughter, who besides her husband, were with her when she died. Her stepson, Downy Mitchell, is in Texas.

Mrs. Mitchell was one of the best women in Adair county, and had been a member of the Presbyterian Church since early girlhood. She was about forty nine years old. She became afflicted with rheumatism four or five months ago, and at times she was thought to be improving, but a few weeks ago other complications set up which baffled the skill of physicians, and she peacefully and resignedly met her God.

While in health she was exceedingly kind, ever ready to wait upon the sick, hence she will be greatly missed not only by those who were near and dear to her by ties of blood, but by the entire community.

The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the Presbyterian church, conducted by Rev. J. R. Crawford, many relatives and friends being present. The interment was in the city cemetery. There were many beautiful flowers.

May the Giver of all that is good comfort the sorrowing husband and all other relatives in the dispensation of His providence.

Alumni Organized.

The alumni meeting at Lindsey-Wilson last Tuesday evening was voted by the public a very successful affair, and by the graduates a most enjoyable one. The program consisted of an interesting address by Rev. Mont Gabbert of the class of 1910, the roll call and response of each class, class songs, two piano solos by Misses Margaret Todd and Annie Hodges, and a short talk by Prof. Neilson.

After the program was rendered, a business meeting was held, and the following officers elected:

Mr. Robt. Todd, Pres., Miss Katie Murrell, Vice Pres., Mr. Tom Judd, Sec'y and Treas., and Mr. Mont Murrell, Historian.

The first of the annual alumni banquets will be held August the 23rd, at Phillip's Hall.

At the Home of the Pastor.

Last Sunday night, about 11 o'clock, Mr. Fred Cundiff, an industrious young farmer, an elegant gentleman, and Miss Clara Burdick, of Taylor county, were quietly married at the residence of Eld. Z. T. Williams, this city. The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. Ray Conover and Miss Ada Feese; Mr. Dennis Eubauk and Miss Bertie Blakey.

It is our understanding that the couple will reside in the Mt. Pleasant neighborhood, where the groom was born and reared and where his gentle conduct has made him many friends. The bride is said to be one of the best young women in Taylor county.

Mr. Will Jones, son of Mr. Butler Jones, was badly bitten last Sunday afternoon by an alligator. On one of Mr. J. B. Barbee's recent trips to Florida, he brought home an alligator, about two and one half feet long. Sunday Mr. Jones was at the residence of Mr. Barbee and was playing with the sea animal. Something caused trouble and the alligator made a dive at Mr. Jones' right hand, badly biting his thumb. Dr. Russell dressed the wound taking five stitches.

Miss Leontine Leachman entertained Monday evening in honor of her guests, Misses Mary Myers and Frances Garnett, of Columbia, Ky. She was assisted by her nephews, Master William and Hugh Howell. The color scheme was very charmingly carried out in pink and white. The evening was highly enjoyed by all present. An enjoyable little picnic was given at Bluff Boom in honor of Misses Myers and Garnett, Saturday afternoon. The picnic party was chaperoned by Mrs. A. L. Miller.—Greensburg Record.

If you have any mason work to do such as foundations, retaining walls, flues, etc., you should call on U. M. Grider, Craycraft, Ky. He is also a concrete expert.

Persons in Columbia who are expecting visitors next week will please call the News office and give name.

Born to the wife of Frank Burton, a son, August the 8th.

Wills Probated.

The will of Elizabeth J. Watkins was probated in the Adair County Court the first Monday in this month. She gives to W. E. Wilson her farm, on Russell's creek, known as the Andrew Powell farm. Second, to her nephew, J. E. Carpenter, $3,000. Third, the remainder of her estate is to be equally divided between her sister, Louisa Bernetta Walker's children, viz: Frances Marion Carpenter, Dorinda Myers, Bernetta J. Hill, Mary Walker, and a daughter Artamissa. If any of these children are dead, without issue, their part goes to the surviving children. Fourth makes no provision for other heirs. Fifth, she names J. F. Montgomery as her executor.

Dr. S. D. Crenshaw's will first, gives his real estate in the town of Columbia to his wife during her life or widowhood. Should she remarry the property goes to his two sons, Clyde and Paul. It also impowers his wife to sell and make deeds should she so desire to change her residence. He gives all his personal estate also to his wife, authorizing his executor to sell any of the personal property that his wife may think best. If she desires to sell the town property to be invested in a farm she is authorized to do so, but the deed to any reality she may acquire is to be made to her during her life or widowhood, and should she marry or die, then the property goes to his two sons, named above. He names Rollin Hurt as his executor and directs him to pay all his debts, funeral expenses, etc., and to turn over all monies that may be left to his wife, Georgina P. Crenshaw.

Contest papers have been filed by Mr. A. K. Rupe, against Mr. John Simpson, in the school election of a trustee in the Breeding precinct. Mr. Rupe and Mr. Simpson, were the candidates and on the face of the returns the latter was elected. The former claims that the winner received eight illegal votes. Depositions are being taken and the issue will be decided in the circuit court, Judge W. W. Jones, Mr. J. F. Montgomery, and Mr. Paul Smyth, represent the plaintiff; Mr. Rollin Hurt, the defendant.

Republicans of 37th Legislative district composed of the counties of Adair and Cumberland are hereby requested to meet in Mass Convention in their respective counties at the county seat in each county at one o'clock on Saturday September 2nd, for the purpose of electing delegates to attend a meeting to be held at Burkesville on Monday, September the 4th, at 10 o'clock a.m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Representative in this the 37th Legislative District of Kentucky.

W. A. Coffey,

Chairman Republican Committee 37th Legislative District.

The Russell Springs Fair, judging from reports received here, was a success. The crowd in attendance the first day was light, but Wednesday, Thursday and Friday people swarmed. The number of people on the grounds Thursday were estimated at three thousand. The Liberty Band furnished the music, rendering many new selections. There were a number of good horses on exhibition and competition was exciting. Good order throughout the four days.

Bishop Carter, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will deliver his great lecture on "The Mistakes of Matrimony," at Russell Springs the first Saturday night in Sept. Every body invited. The day following he will dedicate the new church at Sano. The second Sunday in September he will dedicate Albertson Chapel, near Plum Point. The ministerial Association will begin at this last named place on Thursday morning before the second Sunday.

A Former Citizen Dies in Texas.

Mrs. Mary Caldwell and Mrs. Emily Burton, of this place, received a message Friday night stating that their brother, Mr. W. E. Walker, familiarly known as "Buzz", Walker, died at 11 a.m., that day at his late residence, Paris, Texas. They knew that their brother was sick but the intelligence of his demise was a great shock to them. Mr. Walker was a son of Mr. Lewis Walker, and was born and reared on "Big" Creek, near Gradyville, and was fifty five years old. His parents died many years ago, but he is survived by his wife, who was a Miss Yates, a daughter of Mr. W. W. Yates, and one son, who is grown and married; three sisters, the two mentioned above and Mrs. S. E. Allen, this county, one brother, Mr. H. C. Walker, Bradfordsville, Ky. The deceased was an excellent citizen, and his many

The South's Prosperity.

In the South a year of prosperity ahead is stated. Cotton crop, according to the Federal estimate, is going to be above the average in yield. There will not be so much of it that the growers will need to burn a lot of this year's crop in order to assure a good price for that which they put on the market, as has been the case in some instances, but there will be plenty to give the South a liberal amount of revenue for the season's productive activities. Cotton condition for the last month, as reported by the Agricultural Department experts, was 110.2 per cent of normal. That means it was exceptionally good.

If the same percentage of condition were reported as prevailing in the oats and corn crops this country would be rolling in wealth a few months hence, remarks the Droveos' Journal.

The department's estimates on cotton does not take into consideration an increase in the acreage this year. Taking into account both acreage and condition, the indications point to a crop of cotton 1.4 per cent larger than the average production of the last five years. To the South this means a financial situation which smacks of prosperity, but the South is no longer dependent alone upon cotton for its prosperity.

Corn and live stock production in the South is gaining. This generation of Southern farmers are a versatile lot and have made good in corn production as well as growing improved types of live stock, with results that their general prosperity has been enhanced not from cotton growth alone, but through ability to utilize the land to good advantage in diversified farming.

Never Grows Old.

There is one thing in the world that never grows too old to be pretty. It retains the same beauty and symmetry of form with age that characterized it in its youth. Unlike the beautiful girl in her teens it never becomes too old to be good squeezing. It takes no paint or powder to erase the wrinkles from its face and the longer you know it and the better you become acquainted the better you will like it. Men lie down, worship at the shrine of its inimitable expression.

It is always entertained as the most welcome guest. It is a thing of beauty and forever; it is universally loved and revered in spite of the fact that it is man made and not a creation of God's handiwork. It has a soothing and comforting effect and has been known to cure seemingly incurable diseases. It has occult properties equal to the Persian Magi. It is more powerful than the strongest stimulant, in fact at spiritualistic seance literally makes the "ghost walk." It is at once the most popular and the most desppicable thing in the universe. It is a ten dollar bill.

What To Teach Girls.

Teach her that 100 cents make a dollar.

Teach her to arrange the parlor and library.

Teach her to say "no" and mean it, or "yes" and stick to it.

Teach her how to wear a calico dress and to wear it like a queen.

Teach her how to sew on buttons, darn stockings and mend gloves.

Teach her to dress for health and comfort as well as appearance.

Teach her to make the neatest room in the house.

Teach her to have nothing to do with intemperate or dissolute young men.

Teach her that tight lacing is uncomely, as well as injurious to health.

Teach her to regard the morals and habits, and not money, in selecting her associates.

Teach her to observe the old rule: "A place for everything and everything in its place".

Teach her that music, drawing and painting are real accomplishments in the home, and not to be neglected if there be time and money for their use.

Teach her the important truism: "That the more she lives with her income the more she will save and the further she will get away from the poor-house."

Teach her that a good, steady church going mechanic, farmer clerk, or teacher without a cent is worth more than forty loafers or non-producers in broadcloth.

How About it?

How does the Republican State Administration explain the big increase in the school per capita this year over last, asks the Owensboro Inquirer. For 1909 the per capital was $4. In 1910 it was not increased, and people who keep tab on the administration of state affairs began to wonder why there had been no increase in 1910 over 1909. There was the usual increase in the number of children and the usual increase in the total assessed valuation of the state for taxes, which itself should have meant a small increase in the school per capita.

In addition to the increase in the assessed valuation the State Board of Equalization made raise on the counties, which increased the total about nine per cent. Still there was no increase in the school fund. The increase in assessment for 1911 over 1909, still there is an increase of 40 cents in the school per capita. It is possible that the administration needed the increase which ought to have been made last year, and it was used in other channels and then turned back into the increase made this year, it being a campaign year, in order to have an effective campaign slogan?

The Republican nominees and spell-binders will have much to say about the big school per capita, a pet expression being: Just look what this Republican administration has done for the free school! There should be somebody present every time to ask the question: Why was there no increase in 1910? How were you able to make so big an increase in 1911 when the tax assessment of 1911 affords no greater basis for an increase in 1911 than it did in 1910?

HUMOR OF THE DAY TIMELY HINTS FOR FARMERS

A Provoking Mistake.

A Chicago man who started out one day recently to attend a wedding went astray and got into a house where a funeral was being held. He was a little late and was conducted through a rather dark hall into a back parlor, where he found a vacant chair. Unfortunately it was impossible to see from where he sat just what was going on in the front room, where the preacher and corpse were located. He was able, however, to hear distinctly. The preacher was in the middle of his discourse.

"It is true," he was saying, "that this is a most solemn occasion, but let us try to look upon the more hopeful side. It may all be for the best. Who among us can tell? Let us remember that behind the darkest cloud the sun still shines. It is our duty to try to believe that our friend has entered into a happier state. It is true that he will mingle with us no more; we shall not again be cheered by his bright smile. All that once seemed so dear to him he has had to resign; he has met the common fate, but it is not for us to decide that this is to be the end of all for him."

Unable to restrain himself any longer, the man who had wandered into the wrong house leaned over toward one of the former friends of the deceased and said:

"Say, if I were the bride's father I'd tick that fellow." —Chicago Record-Herald.

She Got the Soul.

There was a bashful young man who was invited to a dinner party and was paired with the prettiest woman in the room. His seat at the table was in front of the roast fowl, which he was to carve. And there was also a fried sole in front of him. And he had never done a lick of carving in his life, for he was a bachelor.

But he made the best of the situation by asking the lady at his side what she would have.

"A little of the sole," she replied. He began to cut off a slice of the chicken's breast.

"No, no—the sole," she whispered. Now, where was the soul of a hen? He thought for a minute, and then attacked the wing.

"The sole, the sole!" cried the lady. He looked for the feet, but no soles were left, so he tried a drumstick. But she still shook her head and said, "No, I only want a piece of the sole."

Then did this young man arise in his wrath, stick a fork through the fowl and put it all on the woman's plate.

"Take it," he shouted—"take it, body, soul and all!"

Then he helped himself to the fish. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Amplified Repudiation.

There are stories which will stand resuscitation, and there are stories which will not. Personally I always liked this one of Frank Fogarty's:

"A man was walking along the road with a dog and a gun, and an automobile came along and killed the dog. The owner of the automobile gave the owner of the dog $5 for the loss of the dog and then asked:

"Where were you going with the dog and gun?"

"Down to the woods to shoot the dog," the man answered.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Reason For Wildness.

The young man had been sowing his wild oats, but had stopped for a moment to rest. "I wonder," he murmured thoughtfully to himself, "why it is that my oats are wild?" For a time he sat in deep thought. At last he sprang up. "Eureka!" he shouted. "They are wild because I don't give them enough to drink. That would make anybody wild." And forthwith he extracted a quarter from the toy bank of his baby brother and set out in search of his companions.—Boston Post.

The Resort Prospective.

"Going to run daily excursions this year?"

"Oh, yes."

"I notice you don't advertise a gorge any more."

"No; I made it a ravine instead. Some people thought a gorge meant a lot to eat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Untrustworthy.

Uncle Josh—I'm goin' ter take that thermometer back.

Aunt All—What are yew a-goin' ter take it back for, Josh?

Uncle Josh—"Cause yew can't depend on it. One day it sez one thing an' th' next it sez sumthin' different.—Farm Life.

"Got that much money?"

"This is a sort of cut rate duke. He's willing to come into the family for his board and lodgings."—Kansas City Journal.

"Bobby, didn't you hear mamma tellin' us to come in out o' the rain?"

Forage For Growing Pigs.

Much has been said and written regarding the economy of providing succulent forage for the growing of pigs in the summer season, yet a great many farmers continue to keep their pigs confined in a small pen or yard with little, if any, green feed available.

In case a good pasture lot can be provided for the growing pigs this is, of course, the cheapest method of providing the needed green forage for them, but where this cannot be conveniently done it will pay to cut green forage for them each day. Clover is the best available source of this needed green feed upon most farms, but a variety of green feed can be cheaply provided in this way, especially where only a few pigs are kept.

Individuals Versus Breeds.

In the selection of hogs for breeding animals more attention should be paid to the individual qualities of boar and sow than to the particular breed. Breed alone does not determine good breeding stock. A pure bred boar is to be preferred, and both boar and sow should be rather of a medium than an extreme type of the breed represented.

Under present conditions farmers find it most generally profitable to raise the larger breeds of hogs, the sows producing more pigs at a litter and growing more rapidly in weight than the others.

Neglect of Flock Cuts Profit.

The average American farmer considers for the most part that sheep will take care of themselves indefinitely and that they should thrive on the odds and ends of the farm and the leavings of the other stock.

Never was a greater mistake made. The farmer who invests his money in sheep must make up his mind to stay with them all the time. They need protection from predatory animals and from bad weather, and above all they need to be guarded against the ravages of internal parasites.

The Sheep Need Care.

The poorest class of sheep that find their way to the markets of the country are from the farm flocks raised in the best agricultural states. These farmers buy fairly good ewes and use pure bred rams, but they fall short of giving their sheep proper care and attention.

Changing Turkeys' Roosting Place.

If the turkeys roost in a place where they are not wanted they will seek a roosting place if driven from the old one two or three times just before darkness comes on.

PLOWING UNDER SWEET CLOVER.

As a Soil Restorer the Plant Equals Any of the Legumes.

As a soil renovator, according to Wallace's Farmer, sweet clover is fully equal if not superior to any of the other legumes. Especially is this true when the tops, as well as the stubble and roots, are plowed under as green manure. In an Illinois investigation it was found that an acre of thrifty sweet clover contained in the tops, stubble and roots 228 pounds of nitrogen, which is more than double the amount found by the Delaware station in an acre of alfalfa or red clover.

On account of its rank growth sweet clover adds a great amount of humus, the Illinois station finding that a good acre of sweet clover yielded 6.4 tons of dry matter, which would furnish as much humus forming material as would twenty-five tons of farm manure. If the entire crop is plowed under sweet clover certainly ranks very high as a soil fertilizer.

The chief question is not whether sweet clover is good when used in this way for restoring soil fertility, but whether it can be grown on the given piece of soil. Possibly the soil may need lime, ground rock or phosphate or inoculation with sweet clover root bacteria.

Other conditions favorable, sweet clover should succeed when sown with oats cut for hay at the rate of ten to twelve pounds of hulled seed to the acre.

Dairy Notes.

Feed cattle all you can afford to during the time they are at pasture, as that helps to keep the pastures in good condition.

All cows do not like the same kind of food; neither do they do as well as on some other kind. Study the wants of the animal.

Successful dairy expansion involves the intelligent, systematic grading or building up of a herd both by selection and breeding.

Cows must be kept clean and healthy and have pure air to breathe, and then they will return a volume of rich, nutritious milk in paying quantities.

The cow that wanders over bare pasture and looks "stifly" at growing crops she cannot reach is not happy nor contented and will not produce well.

A WORD TO THE GIRLS.

A little while ago there was a paragraph in this department directed to the class of young men who are interested in nice girls and have a hazy idea of some day asking them to share homes with them, yet who have not sensed the fact that it takes money to furnish a home. This week we have a suggestion or two for some of these same girls and others who may not have realized the fact that it takes something besides a stunning dress, a nicely adjusted rat or a popular air indifferently played or sung and moonshine to adequately meet the responsibilities which a young woman assumes when she becomes mistress of a home. The girl of today is not supposed to spin and weave, as did her grandmother, but she should know how to do neatly and well the plainer kinds of sewing. She should know how to make a good loaf of bread as her mother (if her mother's bread is sour and soggy it should be a good deal better) and a pie with a light crust; should also know how to broil a steak and cook a roast or a boil. She should know something of the care of the sick and how to keep a little child well in hot weather. Then, too, she should realize that any man who is worthy of the name of husband takes just as much pride in seeing his wife neatly attired as when she was his sweetheart and, lastly, that a neatly kept home is the comfort and delight of a decent man, even if he does a good deal now and then toward getting it out of order. In general it may be said that any girl who is a real help and comfort to her mother and who is serious and unselfish will in the course of things acquire a knowledge of these and other things which she most needs to know.

On the other hand, the young man is to be pitied who, drawn to a girl by exterior and surface qualities, finds after they have set up housekeeping that she is lazy, careless, indifferent and sloppy in the way she gets herself up and in the care of the house. Homemaking in the best sense is a wholesome and delightful yet serious business. It requires the best that two young people can put into it, both the young man and the young woman.

SILOS IN THE DRY COUNTRY.

The Kansas Agricultural college directors have come to the conclusion that silos would be a real boon to the farmers in the western part of the state and with this idea in view will next winter build a silo on the state farm at Hays, Kan. A half section of land will be devoted to the experiment, and a practical farmer will be put in charge of the work with a view to demonstrating its feasibility for other farmers in the territory mentioned. Kaffir corn, milo maize, Indian corn and sorghum will be given a trial in the experiment. Some idea of the results to be expected may be gathered from some feeding tests with Kaffir corn ensilage last winter at the state farm at Eureka. Ten steers fed Kaffir corn ensilage, cottonseed cake and alfalfa hay made an average gain of 127 pounds each in a period of fifty-nine days, while another group fed the same length of time on dry shock corn fodder, cottonseed cake and alfalfa hay made a gain of but 114 pounds each. Not only did the Kaffir corn ensilage cost less than the dry shock fodder, but the steers which were fed on the former went on to pasture in the spring in much better condition. The silo will not only provide a succulent ration during the period of drought and short pasture, but it will make possible the securing of corn, sorghum or milo maize that is about to be burned up with hot south winds. The full results of this Kansas silo experiment will be watched with a great deal of interest.

Watermelon Rind Sweet Pickles.

Pare your rind on both sides, cutting off the red and green carefully, cut your rind into small pieces of any shape you may prefer and throw them into salt water. About an inch and a half long by an inch wide is a convenient size. Let them remain forty-eight hours and then soak them over night in clear water. In the morning put them in a kettle and cover them with weak alum water, letting them steam not boil for three or four hours. Then put them into clear cold water and let them stay until the next day. Make a syrup of one and a half pounds of light-brown or white sugar to every quart of vinegar and put your rind in when it is hot, seasoning with stick cinnamon, race ginger and whole cloves. Let them boil till the rind is transparent and put up. I use the Mason cans as I do for preserves.

For making watermelon preserves you can treat the rind in the same way as you do for pickles and instead of using the vinegar with your rind, and make your syrup of one pound of sugar to every pound of rind. Slice lemon and race ginger make the best flavoring for the preserves. Use white sugar and as little water as you can in making the syrup, say a cup to two pounds oil sugar, let it be boiling well before you put in the rind. Cook till your syrup is quite thick. When you simmer the rind in alum water for preserves it is well to spread a few grape leaves between each layer of rind, as it gives it a pretty greenish color. Mrs. Leroy.

How to Dehorn a Calf.

The best way to dehorn a calf is to prevent the growth of horns, before they get a start, by the use of a little caustic potash.

The operation should be performed when the calf is from one to three weeks old, or as soon as the button of the horn can be distinctly felt when rubbing the hand over the poll. Dr. Burton Rogers of the veterinary department of Kansas, tells how to go about the work. The only articles necessary with which to dehorn are a sharp pair of shears or clippers and a few sticks of caustic potash and a little water.

Back the calf into a corner, or into any narrow place and put its head between your legs, holding it firmly. Find the out-growing horns and clip the hair from the spots about one inch in diameter.

Then take a piece of caustic, wrapped with paper at one end to prevent burning the fingers, and moisten the other end slightly and rub an the coming horn. Be careful to get none on the skin of the animal except over the budding horn.

The ease with which this can be done, its rapidity in healing, and the minimum amount of pain it causes the animal make it one of the most humane and modern methods of preventing horns.

Do not use this method while the flies are about unless you can protect the animal.

The splendid record of the Democrats in the extra session of Congress will undoubtedly bear good fruit in the 1912 contest. The overthrow of Cannon as speaker, who, under the rules of the house, was a dictator, and the election of Clark with a change in the laws of that body, restoring the power to its members, cut out the criticisms, contentions and clashes that marred the peace and dignity, and prevented wholesome legislation for years. Mr. Cannon is now just an old flintlock, a relic of bygone days, set aside by an awakened people who believe in honest and progressive policies, and who have tired under the burdensome inequalities of a high tariff. A new set of men are in power with a firm and determined purpose to give the greatest good to the greatest body of people who have been doing task work for a half century. Clark is in the Chair, Underwood leading the battle with unflinching Democrats from every State aiding. Reciprocity with Canada, the reduction on wool, the farmers' free list measure, together with abundance of evidence of general overhauling of high tariff are pointers of better days. The revision of the tariff by its friends failed to satisfy the people. With a few more true Democrats in the Senate and a President of like faith, the world would be convinced of the wise and equitable distribution of burdens and blessings.

Judge E. C. O'Rear, Republican candidate for Governor, is now addressing a large audience at the court house, this city. Our paper goes to press too early to give a lengthy notice of his address, but we take it that it will be along the lines of his speech made before he was nominated. He is popular with the Republicans of Adair county, and they will endeavor to give him a large majority in November. The county is about 375 Republican.

The Democratic State Convention is now in session at Louisville, and the wise men of the party are in attendance. There is but one thing to come before the body—adopt a platform. There are likely to be differences, but we believe the convention will settle all questions amicably, and that a platform that every Democrat in the State will accept, will be adopted.

A dispatch from Washington says that the Government has ordered Assistant Surgeon, R. M. Grimm, who is stationed at Savannah, Ga., to proceed at once to Pineville, Bell county, or any other counties in this State where it is necessary to investigate the outbreak of pellagra.

Senator William Pierce Frye, of Maine, died at Lewistown, that State, last Tuesday. He was a very able man, a leader in the Republican party, having been in the Senate since 1881. His seat will be occupied by a Democrat.

The spread of Pellagra has become alarming in Eastern Kentucky, and there have been many deaths. The State Board of Health is now at work trying to stamp the disease out of the State.

The News extends its profoundest sympathy to the owners of The Louisville Herald, who lost their building and plant by fire.

John W. Gates, the railroad magnate and great American financier, died in Paris, France, last Wednesday.

Gen. George W. Gordon, Commander-in-Chief of the United Confederate Veterans, died last week.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

ADAIR CIRCUIT COURT OF KENTUCKY.
O. D. Wilson, Admr., Plff. vs. Montry Rosenbaum & Dft.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of Adair Circuit Court, rendered at the May term, thereof, 1911, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the late residence of J. M. Wilson deed, to the highest bidder, at Public Auction, on Saturday the 26th day of August 1911, at 1 o'clock, p.m., or thereabout upon a credit of six months, the following described property, to-wit: A certain tract of land lying on the waters of Big Creek in Adair County, Ky., about one and a half miles South of Gradyville, and contains 2 7/8 acres and known as the John M. Wilson farm, and being the same land upon which he resided at the time of his death. Said land is fully described by meets and bounds in the judgment and order of sales, which is recorded in Order Book No.—page 363 to which reference is made for a better description.

The valuable timber will first be offered, and then the land, and then both timber and land together, and the sale or sales from which the most money can be realized will be accepted, but the Commissioner has the right to reject any and all bids. For the purchase price, the purchaser, with approved surety or securities, must execute Bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a Judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

W. A. Coffey, Master Commissioner.

Mr. S. H. Mitchell's heart is full of gratitude for all those who kindly attended upon wife's illness, ending in death. Friends who stand by a person in trouble are worth having, and they will never be forgotten.

Accused Of Stealing.

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25¢ at Paul Drug Co.

LAXATIVE SENT FREE TO TRY

It may be taken for granted that there is no family that does not sometime need a laxative. If you don't know of good laxative, or the laxative you are using is losing its effect, we want to call your attention to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepin, which thousands of families are using successfully.

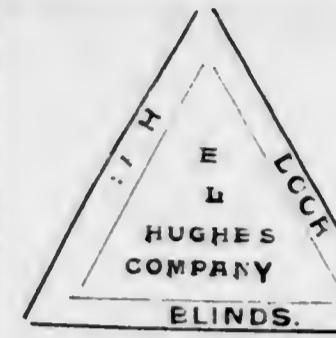

We have scores of letters from mothers, and scores from prominent men saying they are using it personally and giving it to their families, men like Mr. C. K. Smith of the Traffic Clearing House, Pine Bluff, Ark., and Mr. George B. Turner, a lawyer of Harlan, Ky. The thousands of mothers who use it themselves and give it to their children would take too much space to mention.

The reason they prefer Syrup Pepin is that it is a mild, gentle laxative-tonic that does not gripe—effective and yet so mild that babies can take it. Its tonic ingredients invigorate the body and strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles so that they again do their work naturally. If you have been a victim of salts, pills and strong cathartics you will discard them when you once use Syrup Pepin.

You can buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of any druggist, but before doing so you may want to try it free. If so, send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will promptly forward a free sample bottle. Then, being convinced, do as others are doing and buy it in the regular way of your favorite druggist.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building Monticello, Ill.

MADDENED THE BEAR.

Ingenious Trap That Was Formerly Used by the Mexicans.

The Mexicans in California had an ingenious method of trapping bears before the advent of the Yankees brought modern firearms into the region. A piece of meat was nailed to the stout horizontal limb of an oak tree. From a limb five or six feet above a rope was suspended, to the end of which a large stone was made fast so that it hung about six inches above and a trifle nearer the trunk than the meat on the lower limb.

When a bear smelled the meat from afar he would climb up the tree and make his way to the bait. In doing so he would push the stone pendulum to one side. Just as he was about to fasten his teeth in the meat the stone would swing back and bang his head. This would arouse the anger of the bear, and he would give the stone a sweep of his paw which would send it swinging farther out. The consequence was a harder bang and more anger. The more he struck the stone the harder he would be hit in return, until from ferocious anger he would lose his caution and attack the pendulum with all his vigor. One powerful sweep, then bang, and bruin would be tumbled out of the tree to the rocks below, where, disabled by his fall, he would be at the mercy of those who set the trap whenever they chose to take him.

THE HANDY MAN.

His Job of Varnishing the Door Was Not a Howling Success.

Mr. Brewster thought his front door looked as though a coat of varnish would do it no harm and resolved to do it himself to save the expense of a painter.

Finding an old "golden syrup" tin in the yard, he went off to the shop for some "best oak varnish." He placed it in the pantry for the night and was up early next morning and by half past 12 had got the door finished.

"I don't like it now it's done," he said to his wife.

"It's bad varnish," replied she. "He's sold you the wrong sort of stuff."

He thought so, too, and went back to the shop, taking what was left with him.

"This is funny varnish you sold me," said he. "It's dull, sticky stuff."

After examining it the shopman said: "This is not what I sold you. This is sirup."

It then dawned on him that he had got hold of the wrong tin, and he went back home to explain to his wife, who at once said: "Good gracious James! And I've made the pudding with the other stuff!" Then, after a moment's pause, "You'll dine today on roast mutton and varnish pudding!"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Gallery Gods' Applause.

Lawrence Barrett once told of a conversation he had with Edwin Booth. The latter had been congratulated upon an ovation given him by a crowded house on the opening night of an engagement. "The sweetest music to my ears," said the great tragedian, "is the shouting of the boys in the gallery. I know they are not applauding because I have a reputation or because they wish to make a display. They simply give vent to their natural enthusiasm. When they shout I know that I am giving a good performance. As for the parquet, it may clap its hands out of politeness. A dramatic critic who had certain notions as to how a line should be read will applaud if I read it his way; otherwise he will remain quiet. I can never analyze the applause of the front rows, but the gallery is sincere in its likes or dislikes."

Shakespeare's Education.

Shakespeare could not have been an educated man, that is, in the academic sense of the word, for he was a mere youth when he went to London from Stratford and had had, up to that time, only such mental training as he could pick up in the schools of his native town. It nowhere appears that he attended school after leaving Stratford. And yet, as Matthew Arnold says, he lived during his London residence "in a current of ideas in the highest degree animating and nourishing to the creative faculty in a society permeated by fresh thought, intelligent and alive." And he used not only the ideas which he imbibed as they floated around him, but all the learning he could pick up without neglecting his calling.—New York American.

Drawing the Disease Out.

The Chinese have a curious custom of trying to cure sick man. A friend of the patient obtains a straight branch with a few leaves and twigs at the end. On this hangs a mirror of polished steel, and under that one of the sick man's coats. Then he goes for a short walk, a priest in the meantime performing a ceremony. The coat, being carried in this way, is supposed to draw the disease from the sufferer.

Just So.

"He doesn't really love you. He's after your money."

"But if his love were not genuine how could he put so much fervor into his wooing?"

"Oh, a man can dig up considerable fervor when he has to marry money or go to work!"—Exchange.

Inside Information.

"Dear sir," wrote the man who owed his tailor and had received a letter asking for payment of the bill, "your letter was extremely impudent, and I return it to you unopened."

NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

The Huntsman's Awakening.

A story told many times at Meadowbrook in its week of polo activity concerns Edwin D. Morgan, horseman and devotee of sport, whose estate is at Wheatley Hills, not far off. Morgan had been entertaining the assembled company in the club one night before a hunt, but finally had gone to bed despite the protestations of his companions. His room was on the ground floor, almost adjoining the place where the congenital spirits were gathered. The master of hounds conceived a plan for bringing Morgan back into the circle. He brought in the drag, trailed it through the clubroom, into the bedroom of Morgan, across his bed and out the window. Then he unleashed twenty couples of hounds. They followed the hot scent full cry, giving tongue as they leaped upon and over the sleeper's bed and crowded through the window. History does not relate what Morgan said. It is asserted, however, that he rejoined the group he had left, somewhat bruised and cut, but decidedly wide awake.—New York Post.

Record For Size.
Senator La Follette, himself one of the most direct of speakers, has a natural horror of speeches of the rambling, boring kind.

In a recent session a certain senator, after elaborating in a speech of two hours a statement that would have been better made in a speech of two minutes, concluded:
"And that's the situation, gentlemen, in a nutshell."
"Gracious," said Senator La Follette, sotto voce, "what a nut!"

DEFECT THAT WAS EASILY REMEDIED

Amusing Break of an Uncultured Theatrical Man.

The question of the New theater's defective acoustics, now known to fame as the "echo," reminds me of the well authenticated incident in the theatrical career of the late John Stetson. On one occasion, while he was managing the Union Square theater in New York, an important star complained that the acoustics were abominable and that he didn't see how he was to give an effective performance under the circumstances. Stetson, although he had been identified with the Globe theater in Boston, was not overburdened with Boston culture, and the term "acoustics" was not included in his picturesque and unique vocabulary, but he surmised that it was something tangible—some sort of a stage "prop." However, as he wasn't quite sure, he looked the star straight in the face and asked:

"What is it you're kicking about?"

"Acoustics, Mr. Stetson! You've got the worst kind of any theater I ever played in."

"Why, man," said Stetson—"why didn't you say so before? I'll speak to the stage manager at once, and before the curtain goes up tonight I'll have him beg, borrow or steal the best kind of 'cowsticks' to be had on any stage in New York!"—Albert Ellery Bergin in Columbian Magazine.

Rich Man Spoke to Him.

"One of my acquaintances is much interested in the Chagrin Falls Hunt Club and is an onlooker at most of the functions of that organization," says Ward Jackson. "The other night he said to me, with some show of enthusiasm, that gradually he was getting acquainted with the club members."

"Why, man," said Stetson—"why didn't you say so before? I'll speak to the stage manager at once, and before the curtain goes up tonight I'll have him beg, borrow or steal the best kind of 'cowsticks' to be had on any stage in New York!"—Albert Ellery Bergin in Columbian Magazine.

"It is that so?" I replied. "What did he say to you?"

"He said, 'Don't get too near that horse there, or he'll kick your darned head off!'"—Cleveland Leader.

RAILWAY DETECTIVES.

They Trace Those Who Steal or Destroy Property of the Road.

The secret service is a hard game to tackle, but, like all kinds of work, it has its easy jobs. One of them is that of special agent for a railroad. The agent is supposed to trace those who steal or destroy railroad property.

When he is notified that a trunk or other article of baggage is missing he finds out by its number from where it was sent and follows it on the books to the last station where it has been checked. Then he notifies the police in the vicinity between the station where the baggage was last checked and the station where it should have been checked. The police get busy, and probably the property is soon recovered and the thieves put in jail. The baggage is then turned over to the special agent, who notifies the railroad official that he has recovered the stolen goods.

If a freight car is robbed the special agent pursues the same tactics. He finds out where the car was last sealed and the place where the car was reported as having its seal broken. The police or constables in the country between the two points are notified, and if they fail to capture the robbers the railroad may never hear again of the stolen goods. Wherever destruction has occurred to railroad property it is usually police officers who trace and arrest those guilty.

However, the special agent must be a keen judge of human nature and with sufficient tact to make himself popular with the police officers in his territory. Usually he is an old time detective and is well enough acquainted with detectives and police throughout the country to obtain results where an amateur would fail.

THE JUDGE ERRED.

His Mistake Clearly Explained by the Old Colored Woman.

The judge of the juvenile court, leaning forward in his chair, looked searching from the discreet and very ragged plebeians before his desk to the ample and solicitous form of the culprit's mother. "Why do you send him to the railroad yards to pick up coal?" demanded his honor. "You know it is against the law to send your child where he will be in jeopardy of his life."

"Deed, Judge, I doesn't send 'im. I neber has sent 'im, 'deed!"

"Doesn't he bring home the coal?" interrupted the judge impatiently.

"But, Judge, I whips 'im, Judge, ebery time he brings it. I whips de little rapscallion till he cayn't set, 'deed I does."

The careful disciplinarian turned her broad, shiny countenance reprovingly upon her undisturbed offspring, but kept a conciliatory eye for the judge.

"You burn the coal he brings, do you not?" persisted the judge.

"Burns it—burns it—cose I burns it. Wy, judge, I has to git it out ob de way."

"Why don't you send him back with it?" His honor smiled insinuatingly as he rasped out the question.

"Send 'im back, Judge!" exclaimed the woman, throwing up her hands in a gesture of astonishment. "Send 'im back! Wy, Judge, ain't yo' jest done been tol me I didn't oughter send my chile to no sech dange'some and jeopardous place?"—Youth's Companion.

Bumps on the Head.

The lump raised by a blow on the head is due to the resistance offered by the hard skull and its close connection with the movable elastic scalp by many circumscribed bands of connective tissue. The result of a blow when the scalp is not cut is the bruising and laceration of many of the small blood vessels or capillaries. Blood or its fluid constituent, serum, is poured into the meshes of the surrounding connective tissue, which is delicate, spongy, distensible and cellular, and the well known bump or lump is quickly formed. This cannot push inward at all and naturally takes the line of least resistance. Similar bumps may be formed on the skin in exactly the same way, for the skin bone also is covered only by skin and subcutaneous connective tissue.

The First Iron Bridge.

The first iron bridge ever erected in the world and which is in constant use at the present time spans a little river in the county of Salop, on the railroad leading from Shrewsbury to Worcester, England. It was built in the year 1773 and is exactly ninety-six feet in length. The total amount of iron used in its construction was 378 tons. Stephenson, the great engineer, in writing concerning it said, "When we consider the fact that the casting of iron was at that time in its infancy, we are convinced that unblushing audacity could conceive and carry into execution such an undertaking."

Fertile Socotra.

Socotra, a large island in the Indian ocean, is one of the least known of the inhabited parts of the world. It is mountainous, but very fertile, and in ancient times was famed for frankincense and myrrh, aloes, dragon's blood and spices. But now Sumatra and South America produce more dragon's blood.

Revenged.

"Johnny, I have great news for you. I am going to marry your sister. What do you think about that?"

"I think it serves her right."—House Post.

SELECT CULLINGSAn Invisible Uniform.

"Probability of much night fighting in future wars gives added value to the new gray uniform of the German soldiers," says the Army and Navy Journal. "While this attire proved its superior invisibility at the recent maneuvers during the daytime, it was in the night fighting that its effectiveness was best demonstrated. In daylight men engaged in patrol duty and security service were unseen by the enemy, but those in dark blue in the hostile forces at once drew their fire. Numerous fights took place at night with searchlights, and then it was found that the gray was universally appreciated. Troops wearing the old uniform were clearly visible on the ground, even when lying down, while those in gray were extremely difficult to discover, even when in close order. It is obvious that any color harmonizing with the paleness of artificial night light will be more effective as a shield from detection. It has been estimated that if one of the combatants at Port Arthur during the Manchurian war had had the German type of gray uniform it would have had a decided advantage over its adversary in the continued night fighting that occurred around that fortress."

Ball Players Off the Field.

One day I was making a long jump with the Chicago Cubs. From curiosity I went through the car to see how the men were occupying their time. "Doc" Marshall had a work on dental surgery which he was discussing with Pitcher Andy Coakley, also a dentist. Lundgren, a pitcher, was explaining a system of ensilage to "Chick" Fraser. Chance and Kling were the only two talking baseball. A poker game occupied five players. Two were asleep, and two, with their wives, were playing bridge. Reulbach was reading a work on chemistry. Slagle was reading a novel, and Sheppard and Steinfield were discussing the relative merits of Texas and Pennsylvania. Pat Moran, a devout Roman Catholic, was arguing earnestly with a reporter who for five years had been working on a history of the children's crusades. Moran, beyond being something of a student of Irish art, music and traditional history, is one of the best posted breeders of Boston bull terriers in the country. Far back in the corner of the car Johnny Evers was absorbed in reading "The Life, Times and Teachings of Savonarola." —Hugh Fullerton in American Magazine.

The Lance.

Many military experts have derided the lance as a cavalry weapon, asserting that it is old fashioned and cumbersome. But there are those who still believe in shock tactics and the cavalry charges. In Germany especially the lance in the hands of the Prussian uhlans remains a formidable weapon. It recently has been pointed out, however, that the lance point often makes too deep wounds for the shaft to be withdrawn quickly, and so the lancer runs the risk of having it wrenched from his grasp in the charge. Accordingly the cavalry regiments in Germany have for some time been experimenting with a new kind of lance that carries a ball below the base of the lance head. It is claimed that the new arm is just as effective in disabling an enemy and is free from many disadvantages.

The Lottery in Prague.

"What is right depends on where one lives," writes an American from Prague, Bohemia. "This advertisement appeared in the papers recently: Tomorrow evening the drawings for the twenty-eighth state lottery for the military charity fund will take place. There will be 21,135 prizes, amounting to 620,000 kronen. The chief prize will be one prize each of 50,000 and 30,000. All prizes will be paid in cash. Chances at four kronen may still be obtained at all tobacco shops, exchange offices, postoffices and customs offices. These places are all under government management, and it is clear that the lottery is a government institution."

Height of His Ambition.

Edward Sundell, for many years one of Chauncey M. Depew's confidential clerks, has compiled a book containing "mottos, aphorisms and nuggets" from the speeches of the ex-senator. One of the Fourth of July quotations reads: "I had looked for years with awe at the orator as he rode in the open barouche in the procession. I had listened to him with reverential attention. The day came when I sat in the back seat, on the right hand side of the carriage as the orator of the day, and when I stood upon the platform and spoke the old familiar truths I thought ambition had culminated and nothing more in life was left to be attained."

Such is Fame.

Fame may be a fine thing for the person who has acquired it, but be it ever so great it is never complete. An incident in the supreme court a few days ago might be quoted in proof. Joseph H. Choate, leader of the New York bar, appeared in court for the first time in several years. "I see Joseph H. Choate is here," said a reporter to a court clerk. "Who?" asked the latter official. "Choate," replied the reporter. "Who is he?" again queried the clerk. "You know, Mr. Choate," said the reporter. The clerk replied nonchalantly and in all seriousness. "Seems to me I have heard of him." —New York Tribune.

Hammocks are not much used in Germany. Most families, even in the small cities, live in flats, and the villas or cottages of the suburbs seldom have porches or verandas where hammocks could be hung.

Out of 700 samples of milk examined in London in three months 106 were tuberculous, and the task of tracing this milk necessitated the examination of 8,715 cows at 102 farms scattered over the country.

The king of Italy is one of the most enthusiastic of royal motorists and the only one who has qualified by passing a severe practical examination in driving a motorcar. He is a clever mechanician and can repair his own car as well as drive it.

The best dressed men are to be found in New York, says a German paper in an article on the decadence in male fashions. In which the writer laments the fact that men of the present day are content to be clothed and no longer trouble about elegance in dress.

Sawdust is briquetted by several firms in Europe for a household fuel. Sawdust briquettes, while almost as easily ignited as wood, burn much more slowly, owing to their having been compressed so highly in the making. This is an advantage, as the fire does not need replenishing so often.

Of all peoples in the Balkans the Albanians are the most uncultured and uncouth. They have no history of their own and up to fifty years ago they did not possess even a written language. At present they are using three different alphabets, the most popular of which is the Latin one.

With sixty-seven daily papers, thirty-two triweekly, twenty-six semimonthly, sixty-eight weekly, four fortnightly, one three weekly, one four weekly and thirty-four monthly publications to a population of 552,168 males and 490,529 females, New Zealand may justly claim to be anything but illiterate.

Next year the English church will celebrate the one thousand three hundredth anniversary of the baptism of the first English king by St. Augustine. The dean and chapter of Canterbury still hold land in Essex given by King Ethelbert of Kent, which has been in their uninterrupted possession since 597.

Birds, it seems, rarely if ever get accustomed to the sound of electric bells so as not to be startled at the ringing of one. Knowing this, the head master of an Austrian school has patented an electric scarecrow, in which a clock makes the connection at irregular intervals to electric bells strung over its orchard.

To determine whether the phenomena of life could be made to disappear and be restored, remarkable experiments have been carried out by Professor Paul Pletet of Geneva, with startling results. In one case he froze live goldfish in water to 20 degrees C. below zero, and three months later gradually melted the ice and brought the fish back to life.

Dr. Edward Grace, said to be the greatest cricketer the world has ever seen, who died recently at his home in Gloucestershire, England, had been actively engaged in the English national game for nearly sixty years. He was the oldest of the Grace brothers, all noted cricketers. So popular was he when he retired that his countrymen gave him a benefit which netted about $30,000.

Escaped with His Life.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything I could hear of, for my cough and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C. for a year but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I own my life to this great throat and lung cure. Its positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, and all bronchial fevers. 50¢ & $1.00 Trial bottle, free at Paul Drug Co.

Very Serious

It is a very serious matter to ask for one medicine and have the wrong one given you. For this reason we urge you in buying to be careful to get the genuine—

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT
Liver Medicine

The reputation of this old, reliable medicine, for constipation, indigestion and liver trouble, is firmly established. It does not imitate other medicines. It is better than others, or it would not be the favorite liver powder, with a larger sale than all others combined.

Mr. Geo. Rodgers, the well-known insurance man, of Milltown, was in our town a day or so of last week.

The reunion of the old soldiers that convened at Weed a day or so of last week, was largely attended.

Mr. Robert McCaffree, the efficient surveyor, spent several days in the Sparksville community and this community last week.

We are glad to note that the diphtheria cases are all well, and no new case has developed up to the present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Bell, Nell, spent several days last week visiting the family of Mr. Geo. H. Nell.

Mr. W. G. Pickett, the well-known merchant, of Pickett, was in our midst one day last week and reported his business very good. Considering the extreme drouth we are all having at this time.

Mr. R. J. Howard, of Greensburg, passed through here one day last week enroute for Sparks-ville, where he will look after some hickory timber with a view of locating a mill there in the near future. Mr. Howard informed us that he was thinking very strongly about buying a farm near this place and locating here permanently. We would certainly be glad to have Mr. Howard and family in our midst.

Prof. J. H. Holladay was in our midst one day last week looking fine. Prof. says he will not teach this year.

Uncle Thos. Grady, one of our oldest citizens, has been confined to his room for several weeks with a complication of diseases. Owing to the extreme hot weather Uncle Thomas does not improve as fast as we would like for him to, but it is hoped by many friends at an early date he will regain his strength.

Mr. Robert O. Keltner is the owner of one of the best mule colts in this part of Adair county. This mule is made up in every particular just right, and Uncle Charlie Yates has one just about as good, and D. C. Wheeler, C. M. Hidman with several others have first class mules. Anybody wanting a lot of first class mule colts would do well to come to this community. There have been a few sales on the colts ranging in prices from $80. to $100.

The continued drouth has doubtless cut our growing crops of corn considerably. We hear our best farmers living on the ridges say that if we were to have rain from now on in an abundance their corn would not make one half of a field, while on the other hand we hear our farmers report from the bottom on the creek and they say that never was such a prospect for a corn crop. We can console ourselves with the thought of what we loose on the ridges we will gain on the bottoms.

Mr. Editor your reporter will ask a leave of absence for next week as he expects to be away from town.

Well I am at home again from Weed Adair county Ky., where I attended the Old Soldiers re union. It was by far the best one of my life; there were about fifty old soldiers there, and such preaching, singing, praying and shouting, I never heard before; just a regular old time camp meeting. The soldiers ate coffee, bacon and sow belly, two days on the ground, all credit is due Joel Moore and the committee for the way they managed the camp grounds, the very best order prevailed all the way through.

Here is a list of the names of the soldiers present:

and Mrs. O. H. McClister Jr., who still survive her. Was born April 18, 1875, being 36 years, 3 months and 15 days old.

About three months before her death she requested to be carried to her father's home for a few days visit, thinking perhaps the change would do her good, but soon after her removal, she, as well as her relatives and friends, realized that she would never again return to the home she had left, and that death was not far away and her suffering would soon be over.

Besides a father and mother, she leaves four brothers and three sisters, who deeply suffer the loss, but saddest of all, she has left a husband with seven little children to struggle through life without a mother. For nearly four months they had watched and waited for "Mama" to come back home, hoping every day she might be able to come; but Oh! how sad to their little hearts, she never returned, and now their hopes are forever blighted, "Mama" will never come home again, for she has gone to the Beautiful Isle of Somewhere, and is now resting sweetly in the arms of Jesus.

Early in life she united with the Christian church, and her resignation to death, and her trust in her Savior was strongly manifested in the last hours of her earthly existence, and is a rich legacy to her immediate relatives and friends. When she realized that death was near she constantly talked to her friends of her bright home, especially to her husband and little children, daily calling them around her bed advising them how to live, and asking them to visit her grave, that by so-doing they might ever remember their dear, loving mother.

To us she was such a sweet sister, and in our hearts we can not help but say:

Oh! Why is it sister, you've left us
And gone to that heavenly shore,
Where angels are singing and calling,
Where sickness and death are no more.

Alone in this world we're traveling,
Each day sadly thinking of you,
How long will it be till we'll follow,
Our sweet, loving friendship renew?

Yes, on the dark bollows we're waiting
For a glimpse of the beautiful land,
When we shall be piloted over
By our dear loving Savior's hand.

We miss you, dear sister, we miss you,
We are lonely away from your side,
But in that fair land we'll join you
And there ever more we'll abide.

A sister.

On Thursday night, August 3rd, 1911, the spirit of Gertrude, the beloved wife of Henry Gadberry, took its flight to God Who gave it, passing over the river of death as if entering a deep sleep.

For almost a year she had been in declining health from a cough and a complication of diseases that proved incurable.

She was the daughter of Mr.

Big Land Sale.

Death visited the home of Mrs. P. P. Pendleton and claimed for its victim the beloved husband and father. He leaves an aged wife and several children.

On the 28th of July, Mrs. Nannie E. Humphress, the beloved wife of Mr. W. A. Humphress, succumbed to the inevitable, and crossed over the river of Death. The deceased was 59 years, 3 months and 13 days old when the end came.

She was sick only a short time, and bore it patiently. She was ready and willing when the summons came, having been a true Christian for a number of years. She leaves a husband, three daughters, a son, three brothers and one sister, besides numerous other friends and relatives.

The interment was in the Page cemetery near Cane Valley, Saturday. The husband and children have the sympathy of the neighborhood.

Mr. G. C. Russell is preparing to erect a great feed barn.
